on i5-3220M 2.1 - 2.5 GHz. miso: malnadri: see my commands above You can't remove ubuntu-desktop since that is a metapackage, just delete the stuff you installed that you don't want @k1l_ please have a look Guest84546: See k1l_ can I edit grub config manually malnadri: Yes if you have physical access to the machine rory thanks Guest84546: I also recommend you use regular installation for a Linux install with more than one HDD. It's faster, it's more versatile, it's more secure. Guest84546: And in my experience it's usually a lot faster to setup. thanks TheSilentLink malnadri: why is this "ubuntu server" on an desktop system? malnadri: also, you can boot into live cd and then edit /etc/default/grub and /etc/grub.d/ in case you do need to add something. Then after you reboot you run sudo update-grub malnadri: looks like that file is used to boot to the live iso directly. so dont use that k1l_ it was running on AWS ubuntu 16.04 server.I am upgrading to ubuntu 16.10 I've never found a compelling reason to run server on a desktop machine. Usually a machine I am developing on, or want to do my development on. @k1l_ can you please have a
