The Matrix movie in hindi english subtitle download.Q: C# struct, extract value from parent struct I have a problem extracting a value from an enum in a struct: public struct Pattern { public readonly PatternType Type; public readonly int StringLength; public Pattern(PatternType type, int stringLength) { this.Type = type; this.StringLength = stringLength; } } public struct PatternType { public readonly string Name; public PatternType(string name) { this.Name = name; } } The enum is defined: public enum PatternType { [StringLength(1)] One, [StringLength(3)] Three } When i try to extract the value from the enum i always get a nullreferenceexception string patternType = pattern.Type.Name; I have read up on the Enum-Namespace, but this is not the correct way, am i doing it wrong? I am also using structuremap A: Here is a quick fix (not using StringLength) and note the usage of generics. Also, prefer using a string over a long with a proper indexer: public enum PatternType { One, Three }; public struct Pattern { public PatternType Type { get; private set; } public Pattern(PatternType type) { Type = type; } public static implicit operator PatternType(Pattern pattern) { return pattern.Type; } public string Name { get; set; } } Usage: string patternType = "Three"; Pattern pattern = Pattern.FromEnum(patternType); EDIT Something like this should work: public struct Pattern { public PatternType Type { get; private set; } public Pattern(PatternType type) { Type = type; } public static implicit operator PatternType(Pattern
