Keeping up With the

Kardashians recap: The Nail

Trend Though she's probably best known for her questionable beauty trends, Kim Kardashian loves a little hard-to-categorize fashion. From leather to lace to fingerless gloves, she's got a weakness for something, be it on her hands, her feet, her eyelids, or her neck. In the latest episode of Keeping Up With the Kardashians, Kim and her sisters were paying a visit to their mother Kourtney's nail salon, and Charisa ("a little cat on the prowl") decided to pay her own visit to get some manicures. In the process, she also got a hint at just how colorful Kim's style can be. Kim Kardashian recently launched her very own beauty line, designed to be even easier to wear than her other trademarks, like her massive beach bags and bodystockinged bodysuits. It's good that she has her own makeup company because her lack of makeup doesn't mean she doesn't want to look pretty. The reality star was wearing a dark gray nail polish that was a bit more edgy than her usual acrylics, which came in a rainbow of vibrant hues. Charisa had her own fun with the colors, though, opting to paint her nails black and white and giving them a little “shocking” look. The look took off in a hurry, too. In just a few seconds, Charisa’s nails morphed from a black and white cat-eyed design, to a simple palm print. But the truth is that not only was it incredibly fast, but also that Charisa's nails looked much better than the original. Kim's manicures have been criticized for not always being on point, but Charisa's black and white nails, while definitely striking, looked less like a cat-eyed manicure and more like something that a professional nail technician would do. Charisa could learn a thing or two about color.

Although she gave herself a black and white, professional manicure, her actual nail polish is nowhere near as dramatic. Kim's nails had a rainbow of colors, but they're not for everyone. While most people like 2d92ce491b
