I was able to view a 1/4 of a Chinese Yuan and 2 Canadian quarters and a $20 bill as all red/colored 1s in the Canadian coin book app. However, you can't use this app to identify specific coin that you see. The app also does not let you to click to enlarge the image of the coin. The Canadian coin app has a search feature and you can take a picture of the coin. Thank you for your time. A Google User AmazingApp. Wow. Amazing. Got my first perfect score for coins after trying out the free app. Love that

What's New in the Zittergie Coin Catalog?

Sponsors "" "" A novel neurogenic stem cell-like cell in the heart: loss of SMAD4 expression is restricted to cardiomyocyte lineage progenitors in the embryonic rat heart. SMAD4 is an intracellular mediator of TGFbeta signaling, which regulates cell growth, differentiation and apoptosis. We show that SMAD4 is expressed exclusively in cardiomyocytes during heart development and that loss of SMAD4 expression in transgenic animals results in a thickened myocardium and ventricular septal defect. Using in vitro myogenic differentiation protocols, we show that SMAD4 expression is transiently downregulated in isolated precardiomyocytes derived from E8.5 SMAD4-knockout hearts, but not in the cardiomyocytes derived from E11.5 embryos, suggesting that a defect in cardiomyocyte differentiation may be the cause of cardiac abnormalities in SMAD4-null embryos. Gene expression analysis in cultured SMAD4-knockout precardiomyocytes shows that multiple cardiac genes are transiently downregulated upon SMAD4 deficiency, including several myocardial genes (e.g., cardiac myosin heavy chain). Intriguingly, the expression levels of several other genes known to be expressed in the ventricular myocardium (e.g., desmin, connexin-43 and atrial natriuretic peptide) are unaffected in SMAD4-knockout myocytes. Our data suggest that SMAD4 is required to control the growth, differentiation and/or survival of embryonic cardiomyocytes.
