Caution Photoshop has a full history of lawsuits and class-action lawsuits that have caused Adobe to send out several thousand pages of liability warnings. If you have to use Photoshop, you'd better understand the software and know what you're doing. Otherwise, use a free or low-cost alternative. ## The Photoshop Lens Collection The Photoshop Lens Collection is a collection of high-quality, high-definition, wide-angle lens filters that were made specifically for the professional photographer. This is the most useful collection of filters, since it provides the easiest way to apply filters quickly without sacrificing quality. You can enhance the images in most photo editing apps with these filters. ## Adobe Lightroom Lightroom (www.adobe.com/products/lightroom.html) is the free version of Adobe's (www.adobe.com) powerful image editing suite. Adobe Lightroom is designed to give photographers greater control over their digital images in a way that's easy to use. It includes an image development feature that enables photographers to make creative edits and color adjustments to images. Adobe's Lightroom has two parts: the application itself and its companion _library_ software (available for download at www.adobe.com/products/photoshoplightroom/web/). The application features a sophisticated image editing feature that enables photographers to make creative edits to images that can be applied directly to images.

Celiac disease with superimposed measles: a case report. In previously healthy young adults, celiac disease may present as a measles-like illness or may initially resemble severe food allergy. We report a 30-year-old man with superimposed celiac disease who presented with an acute measles-like illness. The patient responded well to oral prednisone and nutritional intervention. The diagnosis of celiac disease was confirmed by determination of an anti-endomysial antibody in the patient's serum. He had not previously been diagnosed with celiac disease. The prevalence of superimposed celiac disease in patients with measles is probably underestimated. To our knowledge, this is the first reported case of a patient with celiac disease with superimposed measles. Follow me on Twitter Day 189 — I'm In Love With You The sun is setting and twilight is on its way. The first stars blink in the dark horizon like gems. The noise from the road behind makes me still focus on the location, when I want to share in the beauty of the evening. "Come with me, come with me." A voice is calling, a woman or a child, I'm not sure. "Where to?" I ask myself, flustered, as I follow the voice. "Well you are here; you can make it a little longer, or you can go back." "I'm going with you," I answer, as I leave the company and follow the voice. She stops next to a rock outcropping, a natural rock that has been turned into a sculpture. I think it's the first place on earth to have been made from a rock. The ground is covered with bright colored leaves, and the opposite side is covered with a few dark leaves. It has been there for years and years, until now, this is the place that has caught my attention. There is a ring of leaves around the sculpture. It is too big to be a real ring, it is more like a ceremonial circle. I'm thinking that we are standing in the middle of the ring. I do not know how she has caught my attention, but I keep following her. I'm still a little bit uneasy, there are other conversations between strangers and I feel they are not for me. The woman with the voice calls me "friend"
