The Office of Budget and Management has spent the last two days trying to figure out how to get rid of the money that keeps being sent to Congress. It comes down to that many people are getting a little tired of the old “line in the sand” and instead want their congressmen to actually hold accountable to the people who sent them there. The proposal in question is that, if there are no budget cuts to be found, then the US will have to send out a note to the Treasury Department requesting that the amount be withheld from that year’s budget. But the incoming Administration has no idea what the “official” amount of money the US spends every year is. It’s impossible to get a firm figure, since Congress and the President decide on the yearly amount according to a series of “Gang of Six” meetings. It’s known, though, that the Pentagon is expecting between $600 and $700 billion in budget cuts. Combined with the sequester cuts of around $42 billion planned to take place over the next nine months, that means around

$1 trillion in cuts overall. The problem: while everyone is agreed that the Pentagon needs to take some of the cuts, nobody knows what the other things that need to be cut are. To figure that out,

3.0 POCS - Page 014 4. Background Gradient

4.1.5.1 Gradient background The gradient background is a new feature of CSS 3. It's not the most obvious feature of CSS but it has some amazing use cases. For example, a gradient image on top of a background image. 4.1.5.2 Usage in this tutorial In this article we'll use it to create a simple "whitewall" effect on a background image. 4.1.5.3 The background image As always, start by creating an image to be used as our background. To do this, create a new image of your choice and arrange it where you want it on your website. Set the background to transparent. #bg { background: transparent url(path/to/gradient/image.jpg); }

4.1.5.4 Creating a gradient image

Next, create a gradient image in Photoshop. Create a new file on Photoshop, select a colour and click the new gradient option to create the gradient. Next, go to the filters palette and choose "blend gradient" and drag your gradient image over to the layer below. Choose "10px" as the width and "10px" as the height. Leave everything else on the default settings.

4.1.5.5 Applying the gradient image

Now that our gradient image is in place,
