AvMapsLoader is a simple utility program which gives you the opportunity to download a selected map from the Nokia Maps server. You simply enter the URL of the file you want to download and select the maps you want to download. After the map files have been downloaded you can list all downloaded files by clicking on the "List" button. There are three different listing methods available: File names: Marks the downloaded file with a small color mark (in the map image). File type: Marks the downloaded file with the type of the file. Partial information: If the downloaded file contains part of a larger map, this file is listed with the corresponding part only. Map features: Marks the downloaded file with features of the map. AvMapsLoader Versions: There is currently a version 4.4.0 released. The default configuration is that all maps will be downloaded and listed if none is specified in the URL. If the user wants to download only a single map from the server he has to specify the map in the URL by including the map name. There are currently two types of URLs for Nokia Maps server available: Normal URLs: You will find normal URLs if you use a Nokia Maps client on Windows. URLs for the servers on the Nokia Maps server: At this moment there are two servers available. The first one is called AsvMaps and offers maps for Japan and China. You will find many Japanese and Chinese maps on the server. It is also possible to filter the maps to show only one or several countries. Some countries, like India, are missing. The other server is called NavMaps and offers maps for the USA and the EU. It is also possible to filter the maps to show only one or several countries. Maps from the EU are available at different scales. For this reason the server also offers maps with different zoom levels. The NavMaps server offers more maps than the AsvMaps server. AVMaps
