I have a large dataset of lat/lon coordinates but I only need to know whether the lat/lon falls into a Census Tract. I have a Census tract shapefile so I am able to match lat/lon to Tract, but I don't have the Tract Area data in a file. Does anyone know how to solve this problem or have suggestions? A: I think the best answer is to use the centroid of the Census tract, assuming it's centered on the centroid of the lat/lon point. Then you need only find the area of the census tract. Another possibility would be to take the area of each Census tract and have that be a weight. For example you could say the Census tract that was 20% larger than the one surrounding it was twice as important as the one that was half as large. Then the weight of the one where you were is based on the distance it is from the centroid. However you have to be careful about the size of the Census tract in relation to the area it covers, to avoid double counting. Q: PHP MYSQL search and delete from database I have searched a lot but i cant find something useful on this. I have a mysql database with some content in. Everything is working on the site. Now i want to add a search and delete functionality. I have a search
