Sharing workflow for multiple researchers For researchers to collaborate in writing, each has its own area to stick notes and files, and use the Evernote web client or the app on any device. Write notes directly into Evernote Durable and flexible, Evernote remains at the top of our list of the most powerful and user-friendly to-do list application. However, having the right tool for writing notes and brainstorming ideas can be rather difficult, especially when you have several team members working on the same project. Jott is a tool designed to help with this. Despite being a rather simple and basic note-taking tool, it is commonly used in teams to share, sync and filter notes. There is also a useful feature called SoundCloud, which allows users to upload sound recordings that can be synchronized with other notes. Intuitively, working with a wiki, users can quickly insert and edit documents and images directly into the tool. How to use Jott? A simple interface allows you to create new notes, while organizing and sharing them is just as easy. Searching, sorting, sorting by date, and filtering through topics or tags can be done directly in Evernote's app. With the help of Evernote, the tool can be easily synced and shared with other devices or for researchers that use Jott, the notes are synchronized in real-time. What is a wiki? "Wiki" is an acronym derived from "web" "intranet" and "
