I've been trying to eliminate a lot of unnecessary junk that's getting loaded into my memory and this tool has been helping me a lot. It saves me a lot of time and, best of all, it's completely free!! Identification and characterization of two G2-specific proteins, SPOP and PTEN, from human testis. Eukaryotic cells have two G2/M transition checkpoints, which ensure fidelity of chromosome segregation. One checkpoint is G2-specific, controlled by the anaphase promoting complex/cyclosome (APC/C) and the other is G1-specific, controlled by a cdc2 kinase. Although the G2/M checkpoint is thought to be mediated by the p53 tumor suppressor, the proteins that regulate the G2/M transition have not been fully elucidated. The G2/M transition is controlled by a large number of proteins such as cyclin-dependent kinases (CDKs), and some of these may be similar to the G1-specific kinase, cdc2, that is regulated by APC/C. Here, we report the cloning of the G2-specific protein, SPOP (speckled protein of 93kDa), which contains two WD-repeat domains, two SH3 domains, and a coiled-coil domain, and the cloning
