The ventral pallidum (VP) has been implicated in the pathophysiology of dystonia. However, VP function in limb dystonia remains uncertain. We implanted bilateral deep brain stimulation (DBS) leads into the VP of 14 patients with medically intractable limb dystonia. The primary outcome measure was the video-recorded Unified Dystonia Rating Scale (UDRS) score. We observed a significant ( $P = 0.006$ ) reduction in UDRS score after VP stimulation at 2 months. This reduction was maintained in the subsequent 6-month assessment ( $P = 0.008$ ). The results of this pilot study suggest that VP stimulation may be useful in limb dystonia. This invention relates to a novel emulsion system, to methods of preparing emulsion catalysts and to their use in polymerizing and copolymerizing olefins. A variety of emulsion polymerization processes are known in the art for polymerizing ethylene and other alpha olefins. U.S. Pat. No. 3,780,011 discloses a polymerization catalyst comprising an organoaluminum compound and a metallocene compound capable of initiating polymerization of ethylene. U.S. Pat. No. 3,906,016 discloses a method of making an emulsion polymerization catalyst which comprises contacting a methylalumoxane with a solid, particulate metallocene catalyst and then recovering the reaction product. U.S. Pat. No. 4,260,724 discloses the preparation of ethylene polymers in aqueous emulsions by the polymerization of ethylene using an organoaluminum compound and a metallocene catalyst. These patents all disclose that at least one of the components used in the preparation of the emulsion catalyst, namely a metallocene compound, must be capable of forming an olefin polymerization catalyst. The emulsion polymerization catalysts disclosed in these patents are based on catalysts that are not capable of copolymer
