NuForms 11 is a great product, it is a desktop publishing program. However, in this article I will focus on how to send an e-mail using NuForms 11. It is simple to do, and even if you cannot find a way to make it work, you can try another product to achieve the same effect. To send a e-mail in NuForms 11 you just have to press the e-mail icon on the main toolbar: (source: newwindows.com) To add more body content, you can insert links, images or even tables to do so. Inserting a text link is as easy as pasting the url like this: To do this, open the content window and paste the link in the URL section: From this point, the text is automatically inserted as a link. If you want to insert an image, you can do it in the same way, clicking on the image icon on the toolbar, and selecting the image to insert: Notes: When the image is inserted in the body, the link will be automatically displayed, and you can click on it to visit the image location. To insert a table, you have to use the Insert - Tables option, which is available in the Insert menu: In this case, you can insert the table and any column, row and row group will be automatically generated. To insert the cells manually, go to the Tools menu, and select the Cells tab: You can also change the order, headers, and rows, as well as the type of columns and rows. To view the structure of your table, click the Inspector button to open the Structure window: To add a header row or column, select the appropriate option, and drag to the desired position in the structure window: This will be inserted as a new row or column. To insert a row or column at the end of the selected row or column, drag it to the right or left: And to insert a row or column before the selected row or column, drag it upward or downward: Then, you can delete rows and columns, and adjust the size, using the same options: You can see how useful this feature can be when you need to insert a simple table to present, for example, a simple list of filenames and extensiones. This is all there is to adding a body content to your e-mail with
