Rating: 5Development of a rotary assay for the measurement of intracellular glutathione and for the assay of glutathione S-transferase activities. A method for the rapid and reproducible determination of glutathione (GSH) in cell lysates is described. Cells (2.5 x 10(6) cells per mL) were sonicated in 5 mM EDTA, pH 8.0. After removal of the supernatant, the cell pellet was resuspended in buffer containing 5 mM EDTA, 10 mM Tris-Cl, pH 8.0. GSH was determined by a new glutathione reductase assay. In addition, a rapid assay for glutathione S-transferase was developed using the S-transferase-catalyzed covalent incorporation of GSH from reduced GSH as measured by the decrease in the absorbance of 5-thio-2-nitrobenzoic acid at 405 nm. Experiments were performed on: human erythrocytes (in the presence and absence of 2 mM dithiothreitol), human hepatoma (Hep G2) cells, and human lymphocytes. GSH concentrations in erythrocytes and Hep G2 cells were approximately 100 microM and approximately 500 microM, respectively. Cells were lysed
