... A: You can use re.M: import re res = re.sub('\s+',",", line) print res or join the lines: res = ' '.join(res) A: The approach I recommend is to use the fact that a str object is just a sequence of bytes, and you can join them to produce a single string: >>> lines = "AssassinsCreedSyndicat of discovering a boy's body in their grounds. Staff at Kilbeggan Village, near Mullingar, came across the body of a five-year-old - thought to have been dead for up to three days - in a nearby ditch. Resident Derek Flood spotted the child lying next to a fence and he called the gardai. A source told the Sun: "Derek made a big splash with the gardai when he found the body. "He rang us and said that'someone's son has gone missing in there, he's never seen him before'." (Image: Google Maps) It is understood that the child was thought to have been dead for up to three days. A crime team was despatched to the site, where the body of the boy was found. On the home's Facebook page, they said the child was "found deceased" in the care home's grounds.

They urged people to keep away from the area of the home at Kilbeggan Village as "police were still carrying out investigations".

They added: "Due to an ongoing investigation people are asked to avoid the vicinity of the premises and refrain from approaching the site." A garda spokesperson said: "Gardaí at Mount Sion, Mullingar, are investigating a report of the discovery of a body in the vicinity of Kilbeggan Village, Mount Sion, near Mullingar. "The remains of a deceased person have been found in a ditch adjacent to the grounds of Kilbeggan Village. "The scene is presently being examined by a forensic team. A full investigation is underway. "The incident is being treated as death by abandonment. "No further information is available at this time." "Woman No. 19' acquires by much-loved Listowel teacher of over 40 years Listowel Woman of the Year, Nancy Mac Lean, will be awarded the title of Woman No. 648931e174
