on social media. The new law, which passed on Thursday, is designed to curb "fake news" and quell political debates. It "will lay down rules on electronic campaigning, including political advertising, on social media platforms," said Bartosz Arłukowicz, a conservative MP from the ruling Law and Justice party. "The objective is not to curb freedom of speech, it is to protect freedom of speech. This is a key element of democracy, ensuring that the space for democratic debate and discussing policy is not taken over by manipulators and those who want to sow panic and discord," said Pawel Wos, one of the bill's authors. According to Polish media, the new law will "require
