Cena is better suited to the sports entertainment than the wrestling ring. He is the better crowd organiser, and likes to get his opponents outside the ring, which he does with his new found crowd inspired persona and attitude. Though Punk is a very good wrestler, the biggest gun in the WWE is an entity called the WWE Title. It is a mix of sports and entertainment with the politics and clout of an AFL Premiership medal. Though I will not be watching the WWE Championships this year, I hope that CM Punk wins the WWE Title. WWE should be better for it. Wrestling should be an artform, not a boring reality show.In today's New York Times, you will find a story about the sensational trial of American Elsevier, the publisher of the Journal of the American Medical Association. The articles' author, Julie Bosman, provides the perfect summary of Elsevier's astounding misconduct: "Since 2005, American Elsevier has withheld about 70,000 references from an open-access journal run by Public Library of Science, the taxpayer-funded nonprofit publisher that recruits researchers to publish their work. These hidden publications, many of them innovative and groundbreaking, were covered under a program of nonprofit charity work that funded Elsevier's gold-standard journal, the Journal of the American Medical Association. In return, the company agreed to provide

Are you having problems opening a file because it is not what you expect, or because some other software told you this would be a certain type of file? Try FileTypeChecker. FileTypeChecker checks the file headers and footers to determine the file type. If you are trying to open a file that is not of the type you expect, then FileTypeChecker will likely be able to tell you the file type without even opening it. This is because the file headers and footers hold much more information than the file contents. What are file headers? Every computer file contains header information at the beginning that tells FileTypeChecker where the file is. This file is kept as small as possible so that opening the file does not take any time. Header information has various types; the most common are: · magic number (first 4 bytes) - magic number is a four byte hexadecimal number indicating what type of file the file is · file extension (.fic,.pic,.ico, etc.) - file extension lets the operating system know what application you want to open the file with · file modification date/time (.date,.date2,.time, etc.) - file modification date/time is stored here so that the file size of the actual file can be determined · file crc (checksum) (numeric) - checksum (a number stored as a string of digits) is used to verify that the file has not been modified after it was initially written to the disk. This is used to determine that the file can be trusted as it is as it was originally stored · file length (numeric) - file length is used to determine the size of the file in bytes File Type Checker Does: · verify that magic number is correct · calculate the file length · calculate crc checksum · verify that the file extension does not exceed its maximum value · verify that the file type corresponds to its extension · verify that the modification date/time and time zone information is correct · determine if the file is in 4-byte/4-octet binary, 8-byte/8-octet binary, 16-byte/16-octet binary, or 32-byte/32-octet binary · verify that the file is not an ANSI encoded file · verify that the file is not a compressed file (with the correct type compressed)

· verify that the file is not a ZIP file
