Get the latest news and politics in your inbox by email: Sign up at RollCall.com: .Q: How do I launch VLC from the Dash? I've installed VLC on my Ubuntu 19.10 desktop to play videos. However, there's no icon in the dash to launch it. How can I launch VLC from the dash? A: To open VLC from the launcher search for vlc and check the box so that the icon is available in the launcher. If you need more convenient and customizable access to VLC you can follow these steps: Create the launcher as described in this article. Add VLC as an application to the list of applications under Other. Open the file `~/.local/share/applications/vlc.desktop` in any editor. Add a new line with `Exec=env DISPLAY=:0.0 play` and Save the file. A: I've been using the following script because I wanted a launcher for my desktop that also opens a minimized instance of VLC when the icon is clicked, launched by keyboard with the hotkey "O". For more information see here.

#!/bin/bash
Set up variables mplayer -hide-cursor -fs -quiet "%f" vlc "path to the video"
Note that if you want to hide the VLC instance, add -hide-cursor
Toggle status of VLC window with mouse xev | awk '/key pressed/ {print $2}' | xargs -l % gnome-terminal -e 'clear; xdotool key Press %'
Toggle status of VLC window with keyboard while true; do read -n 1 c; echo "$c"
xdotool key "VK_F4" xdot
