The below graphs are created by Teemu Seppälä, a lead gameplay programmer for FIFA 22. The REVamped Beginnings of Player Impact Physics and Accurate Fouls Inspired by the Real World FIFA 22 continues the evolution of our sport by delivering on-field player impact physics, on-the-ball accurate fouls and a more realistic ball speed. Players’ ball speed, acceleration and deceleration, and player mass and locomotion are all determined by motion capture data and measurements made by our motion capture professional football players playing with a variety of on-field equipment in a real-world environment. The start of FIFA 22 marks the beginning of our evolution towards more accurate player impact physics and accurate on-the-ball fouls. This year, we’re aiming to deliver true-to-life player impact physics by creating more collision detection and response that happens on the pitch, inspired by the real world. Accurate Fouls Inspired by the Real World The enhanced on-the-ball foul detection included in FIFA 22 also improves the accuracy of the on-the-ball fouls for gameplay. Like in the real world, player avoidance and fake hits leave players vulnerable to receiving a foul. Fake hits should be punished more in FIFA, but our goal is not to hinder gameplay or reduce the thrill of football.
