ChangelogLast updated on.From the section Football Celtic assistant boss Stevie Aitken has apologised for his controversial social media post linking the club's proposed Champions League win to the US A-League. Although posted on Thursday, when the Hoops lead 1-0 from the first leg, he deleted it after the game. "While speaking to the media yesterday at the team hotel I misspoke and inadvertently used the term 'tea bag'," Aitken told BBC Scotland. "It was in no way meant to be in any disrespect to anyone connected with the club, the players or the tournament." The 71-year-old, a former Celtic player, was assistant to Tommy Burns when the Hoops won the 2014-15 title and the 2016-17 Europa League, having reached the last eight of the Champions League in his previous two seasons at Parkhead. Celtic top the Champions League Group C table and are level on five points with Romanian side Astra Giurgiu, who host Borussia Dortmund on Wednesday. b7e8fdf5c8
